

Abstract of the Disclosure

A network rack comprising a base, a pair of upstanding vertical posts extending from the base, and a top channel horizontally extending between and connecting the vertical posts, the base including a front upstanding flange, a rear upstanding flange, and at least one intermediate upstanding flange, the flanges being generally parallel to one another and to the top channel and extending substantially continuously from one of the vertical posts to the other of the vertical posts.